Fly With a Top Russian Pilot

Take the Controls. Experience Incredible G-Forces.

You'll fly with a former member of Team RUSS, one of Russia's most famous aerial demonstration teams, or an equally qualified fighter jet pilot. Our Russian L-39 and L-29 flights take off from an airport about three hours from central Moscow. All flight programs include round-trip transportation from Moscow.

30 Minute & 60 Minute Flights are Available
Formation Flying May Be Possible for Groups of 2 or More

Anyone over 18 and in reasonably good health can fly. You'll need a travel visa to visit Russia, so advance planning is necessary.

Sample One-Day L-39 Adventure in Russia

Met at Moscow hotel by Incredible Adventures guide and driver.
Transportation to Flight Center.
Pre-flight briefing with pilot.
Flight including aerobatics and the opportunity to take the controls.
Depart for Moscow.
Late lunch / early dinner.
Return to Moscow hotel.

Perform loops, rolls & high-g turns. Fly inverted. It's an incredible adventure!

Important Scheduling Notes

Flights available on select dates. Plan for this adventure to take 10+ hours to complete, including transportation time to and from Moscow and a stop for lunch. Traffic around Moscow can be heavy and weather delays are possible. We recommend scheduling on a weekend, when there is less road traffic. The trip to and from the airfield is a great opportunity to see some of Russia's countryside.

Aero Vodochody L-39

The Czech-made L-39 Albatros is known for its flying ability, reliability and the great visibility from both cockpits. The L-39 was built as the successor to the aircraft company's earlier trainer, the L-29 Delfin. Design work began in 1966, and the first prototype made its initial flight on 4 November 1968. The aircraft was to serve as the primary jet trainer for the Warsaw Pact. The incredible L-39 is still used by more than 30 Air Forces around the world.
